Art Unit: 2829

1. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

It is not clear what constitutes the compensation principle. It is not clear where a signal is generated that is representative of the current sensed by the current sensor. Maybe part of the problem in understanding stems from the specification having language errors. The claims should not be included in the specification.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

It is not clear what is meant by "compensation principle". It is not clear what is meant by "down-streamed" anywhere it appears in the claims.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lenhard '791 in view of Milkovic or Ernst et al.

Art Unit: 2829

Lenhard '791 shows the basic system claimed except for an RC element connected across a secondary winding and terminating resistor to change frequency characteristics. Milkovic and Ernst et al both show the use of an RC element connected across the secondary winding of a current transformer to change frequency characteristics. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have adapted the frequency characteristic change feature of Milkovic or Ernst et al to the apparatus of Lenhard '791 because one skilled in the art would realize that so doing would result in apparatus capable of responding over a wider range of frequencies.
